Parents are invited to learn about effective strategies for helping their adolescent children to manage the many complexities of life during COVID19. Amidst an informative and uplifting message, explore the impact of social distancing, remote learning and how GenZ will be forever shaped by this pandemic.

For almost 25 years, Terence Houlihan has worked with adolescents in the capacity of administrator, counselor and teacher. He is a lecturer at the City University of New York in the graduate school of education. A TEDx speaker, Terence is also an international speaker who has presented to parents and delivered training seminars for educators on the developmental changes associated with adolescence.
